

KITZBUEHEL WELCOMES THE BEST BOULDERING ATHLETES FROM ALL OVER THE WORLD ON APRIL 26-27

Every winter, hordes of fans flock to Kitzbuehel to watch the legendary Hahnenkamm Downhill ski race. In April 2013 the focus is shifting to climbing, when the international Bouldering elite is competing at the first IFSC Bouldering World Cup in the Tyrolean Alpine city.

After a three-weeks break since the last competition in Millau at the beginning of April the IFSC Bouldering World Cup is moving on to its next stage: The Sports Park in Kitzbuehel is the venue of this season's third Bouldering competition and at the same time the first out of three 2013 IFSC Climbing World Cup events in Austria. Climbing in front of their home crowd will no doubt turn up the heat for Kilian Fischhuber and Anna Stöhr, Austrian world cup winners of the current season!

The who's who of Bouldering

Strong competition for Anna Stöhr in Kitzbuehel can - as usually - be expected from recovered youngster Shauna Coxsey followed by Japan's Bouldering star Akyio Noguchi and US-girl Alex Puccio, third and fourth this season. In the men's competition reigning world champion Dmitrii Sharafutdinov (RUS) is leading the field right in front a strong Guillaume Glairon Mondet (FRA) and Austrian local hero Jakob Schubert. Bouldering Overall winner 2012 Rustam Gelmanov, Jorg Verhoeven and Kilian Fischhuber are also lying in wait on places four to six.

Watch LIVE on the IFSC website

So watch out for another great Bouldering competition starting on Friday, April 26th (start qualification: 10 a.m. local time)!

Semi-finals and finals will follow on Saturday, April 27th, starting at 12.30 p.m. resp. 8 p.m. local time. Live stream on
